Since the start-up of the Forum, there have unfortunately been zero interactions among the subscribers. I guess because everyone felt the Forum dead. I have tried to generate interest in posting a couple of messages, but again no reaction.

The screenshot shows the forum's main navigation bar with links for Home, Help, Search, Profile, My Messages, Members, and Logout. Below this is the forum title 'D4C - Monteverde Contest Club' and a language selection dropdown. The main content area displays a list of categories under 'VHF and UP':

I wonder if everyone has enabled the NOTIFY button in the main Subject / Topic Transatlantic Beacons here: <http://www.forum.d4c.cc/index.php?board=17.0>
The NOTIFY button is located at the top right corner of topic window

The screenshot shows a forum topic window for 'Transatlantic Beacons'. At the top right, there are buttons for 'NEW TOPIC', 'NEW POLL', 'NOTIFY', and 'MARK READ'. The main content is a table of posts:

Additionally, there is the possibility to divide in subject every single argument and it will take short time to find back any info any of us may need.

Hello everyone,

Our wish at D4C is that this forum could become a worldwide reference to exchange information, ideas, opinions, experiences and anything else related to Transoceanic communications on HAM bands on VHF and up.

I am the guy behind D4C who was pushing the beacon project to become alive again from this fantastic location and after the great tropospheric ducting channel on the equatorial region with East to West path which enabled the reception of the D4C/B by P34VHF in Ionàire, we are now even more interested to give to the ham community more signals on the bands and struggling to have a remote station available (in a unfortunately harsh environment).

There are many questions and points of view we would like to discuss, such as which mode could be best for an easy and constant reception (WSPR, FT4, etc) and we would like to contribute to set new standards if required or to confirm the current state of the art.

Any comment is highly appreciated and please start giving your inputs!

73 and GL to everyone
